Surprising Strength Given Morrow in All Sections—Democrats Show Loss in Former Strongholds

Western Newspaper Union News Service
Louisville, Ky.—Perfect weather brought out the vote in all sections of the commonwealth and the balloting was spirited. As soon as early returns began to come in there was much evidence of unusual "scratching" of tickets which indicated the count would be slow.
Reports from nearly 100 counties, the vote of those, principally mountain counties, which have not been heard from will be needed before the result will be certain. Stanley's lead in the eleven congressional districts is figured at 1,700, with many counties to be heard from.
Republican State Headquarters confidently claimed the victory for E. P.

ing, especially in the Fourth District, where Stanley fell far below figures set for him. Summoning a surprising strength in all sections, Mr. Morrow swept through the state with steady gains.
Early returns brought news of greatly reduced Democratic majorities in counties where Governor McCreary showed heavy strength, while the vote for Mr. Morrow in each showed that he was running very close to the vote of Augustus E. Willson, Republican, when he won the governorship in 1907.
When Governor McCreary's home county, Madison, came in with a majority for Mr. Morrow elation in the Republican camp was unbounded.

HON. E. P. MORROW.

Morrow by 16,000 majority, while S. W. Hager, Democratic Campaign Chairman, claimed a Democratic victory by 20,000, while A. O. Stanley, Democratic nominee, expressed the belief that the victory is his by 10,000 majority.
At Democratic headquarters it was admitted that reports were discouraging.

HON. A. O. STANLEY.

A majority of the legislative races have fallen to the Democrats and they will control the next general assembly of the state. Unofficial returns available indicated that Stanley had carried the First Congressional District by a majority of 7,584. Unofficial figures gave Morrow, 7,584; Stanley, 15,138.
Mr. Stanley suffered losses in nearly every district in the state. Democracy of Louisville, whose support has repeatedly been questioned, stood solidly by the nominee. In Louisville Mr.

PURNELL WINNER

In Race For Representative, Defeating Reed By 182 Majority

HARRY P. PURNELL, Mason County's Next Representative

Harry P. Purnell's majority over Stanley F. Reed in the race for Representative of Mason county is 182. The above paragraph is the climax to one of the most remarkable campaigns ever waged in Mason county.
Going into the race at the solicitation of his friends, Mr. Purnell, as he put it in his circular to the voters of this county, being a poor boy, with no money to spend, was fighting for a cause that reached every voter in the county, and when he told them that he had no money to put into the campaign his friends told him he needed nothing but confidence; to go on and they would back him up; and he made his money, spending a dollar outside his necessary expenses, walking away with his opponent in strong Democratic precincts.

The vote for both Mr. Purnell and Mr. Reed will be found in the tabulated form, and tells the tale of how Mr. Purnell won this race with something better than money—friends.

CITY COUNCIL

Several New Faces in the Legislative Branch of the City Government

The race for Councilmanic honors was a hot one in every Ward, the popularity of several candidates being attested by the large vote they received. From the returns it would indicate that the people were desirous of a change, and in two Wards there will be a complete one. In the Third Ward Messrs. Russell and Cablish and in the Fifth, Messrs. Davis and Harrison.
The vote in each Ward is as follows, the winners being the first in each Ward:

First Ward.
Greenlee	127
Thomas	123
Cullen	87
Second Ward.
Easton	152
Smith	142

How To Avoid The Motor Car That Bags At the Knees

The automobile is curiously like the human body—an assembling of independent parts.
The man-machine is made up of muscle and bone, nerve and blood, water and fat, waste matter and brains.
As far as locomotion is concerned, neither machine is any stronger than its weakest link.
Mark the badly co-ordinated man. He looks O. K., but when there are stairs to climb or pace to be forced, he puffs and pants, and one concludes that his ruddy color came from a recent facial massage; that his bellows need mending, that his muscles aren't; that his "strength" is mere scenery and that his sound appearance is mostly tailor made.
Haven't you seen automobiles just like that, look "pretty" but won't take you from Here to There and Back?
The "Wonder Car" that the Square Deal Man sells won't 'bag at the knees,' and he can prove by the testimony of delighted owners that it will take you There and Back, not once, but many times, and that it is the lowest "After Cost" car on the market today. If you are a prospective car owner, phone us and we will be glad to take you for a trial spin in the Maxwell "25."

TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION

Meeting At Cynthiana Last Week the Best Ever Held—Officers Elected.

The best and largest meeting of the Ninth District Educational Association closed its sessions at Cynthiana Saturday.

The addresses of Saturday morning were made by William Huffman, Superintendent of Bracken County Schools, on "What the Rural Schools May Do for the Community," and Dr. William Frost, president of Berea College, whose subject was "Moonlight Schools." He urged the teachers to overcome obstacles in their school districts and be known as those who could do something unusual. T. W. Vinson, president of the Kentucky Educational Association, Louisville, made an address in which he laid great stress on the necessity of teachers attending the Kentucky Educational Association, and said the program for the meeting at Louisville in April had been partly planned and would embrace efficiency and economy of education. One distinct feature of the program will be the literary program given in honor of one of Kentucky's authors, Cale Young Rice, who presided at a similar meeting this year in honor of James Lane Allen.

W. L. Jayne and T. C. C. Noe were absent, and Miss Linda Neville, of Lexington, secretary of the Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness, presented her work to the association, and made announcement to the teachers of the Children's Free Hospital in Louisville that gives to deformed, paralytic children or any with chronic disease the best medical attention free; also spoke of the hospitals at Jackson, Hindman and London for the treatment of trachoma. Colonel Moss, of Frankfort, who has recently been made secretary of the State Tuberculosis Commission, told of the needs of concentrated effort and legislation to eradicate this preventable disease. A delightful feature of the program was the singing of little Eva D. Squires, three-and-a-half-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dean Squires, of Carlisle.

The business session of the association was entered into and the following report was made by the secretary, J. H. Powers. Enrollment at this session of the association by counties was as follows:

Bath—Active 7, associate 1.
Boyd—Active 50, associate 1.
Boyle—Active 56, associate 1.

Nicholas—Active 130, associate 22.
Robertson—Active 27.
Rowan—Active 20.
Wolfe—Active none, visitors 18.
Making a total of 590 active members and 87 associate.

The report of the Auditing Committee was adopted. The committee on constitution recommended a change of time for the meeting in 1916 from the last Thursday, Friday and Saturday in October to the third Thursday, Friday and Saturday in October which was unanimously adopted.

The chairman of the nominating committee announced they had no report, and the association proceeded to elect officers from the floor. The nominations of E. L. Dix and J. H. Powers were before the house and J. H. Powers, of Rowan county, was elected. The vote was 49 to 41. E. L. Dix, of Mayslick, was nominated for vice president and elected unanimously. G. M. Haldane, of Carter county, was elected secretary-treasurer, and William Huffman, of Bracken county, a director. There being no invitation before the association for a meeting place next year, the place of meeting was referred to the executive committee. W. O. Hopper put a resolution before the house and was adopted as an amendment to the constitution, that hereafter the association elect all officers from the floor. Miss Jessie O. Yancey read the resolutions, after which the chairman, R. L. Cord, pronounced the fifth annual meeting of the Ninth Educational Association closed.

ITEMS FROM ALL AROUND

Big Price For Cockrel.

(Mr. Sterling Advocate.)
Chiles & Company, the first of this week, sold a Buff Orpington cockrel to an Indiana breeder for $50. This, we believe is the highest price ever realized for a cockrel hatched in Montgomery county.

Buying Hickory Nuts.

(Fleming Gazette.)
A. L. Conrad brought in nineteen bushels of shellbark hickory nuts one day last week, and Marion Story, of near Somerset, passed through with a load of sixty bushels. Mr. Story says he bought most of them in the country at 50 to 60 cents per bushel.

Booster Over 10 Years Old.

(Owen News-Herald.)
Mr. Curtis Lee Williams, of Owen county, who is attending Stamping Ground High School, had a pet bantam rooster to die last week, aged 10 years and 7 months. This was probably the oldest in Owen county, but then, Owen county is noted for her pretty pullets.

Valuable Patent.

(Winchester Democrat.)
Mr. T. J. Arledge, the popular construction foreman, who has had considerable to do with the building of the L. & N. extension between this city and Irvine, has secured a patent on an appliance for fastening rails to railroad ties, and it is understood, has sold his patent rights to a manufacturing firm for about $65,000.

Caught the Varmint.

(Danville Advocate.)
Upon making a visit to his cistern in the yard close to the house night before last, Dr. B. D. Wood succeeded in capturing a large opossum. The marsupial was supposed to be making his way to the doctor's hen house, which was not far distant, in search of a fat pullet for his supper. The doctor gave his catch to Mr. E. C. Browning, who took it to his home in the country in order to fatten him for a feast.

Loss To Farmers of a Million.

(Lexingtonian.)
The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station reports that the flour mills of Central Kentucky are grinding over a million bushels of wheat per annum in excess of that raised in the State. This means a loss to the farmers of Central Kentucky of at least a million dollars a year, according to the estimate of Dr. Joseph H. Kastle, director, who urges the Bluegrass farmers to increase their yield of wheat.

Warehouse Assured.

(Spencer Magnet.)
A meeting was held at the courthouse in regard to the proposed lease of tobacco warehouse for this place. A capital of $10,000 was decided upon, the company to begin work when a subscription of 50 per cent of the capital is secured. A committee of five was appointed to solicit stock. The value of the stock is $25 per share, no stockholder to hold more than twenty shares. At a business meeting of the stockholders, officers and directors were elected. The location has not been decided upon, several sites being considered, but the house will probably be built near the depot.

Profitable Crop.

In Western Kentucky sunflowers are raised extensively, and the Hickman Courier says of the crop in that section: "The harvest is now well under way and the yield fine. From five to twenty wagons and the army of gatherers are in each field, hauling machines at work and the sunflower head is rapidly losing its rich seed which is being marketed at from 2 1/2 to 4 cents per pound, yielding from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds to the acre. The 2 1/2 cent seed was sold last year under contract to be delivered in October. The market price this fall, we are told, is going to be from 5 to 6 cents per pound."

Ambassador's Privileges.

An ambassador is a person who is wholly free from the jurisdiction of the courts of law or of any other authority in the country to which he is sent. His house is as sacred as his person. It is regarded not as belonging to the party in which he is living, but as a part of the country which sent him. It could not more be entered by the police than a town could be occupied by the soldiers of another nation. This protection is extended to the inmates of the house. If a wrong is committed by some one in the employ of an ambassador, in any capacity, the only means of redress is an appeal to the ambassador or to the government which sent him, and which will not, it is supposed, allow a wrong to be sheltered under the peculiar privileges granted to a representative.

COLLECTING OF TIMEPIECES IS INVENTOR'S HOBBY

Wealthy Retired Brooklyn Man Has Rare Lot of Watches and Clocks.

1,100 TICK-TOCK TOGETHER

Members of Family Take Turns Winding Up the One-Year Family Clock—One Clock Upon Which Swiss Spent His Entire Life.

New York.—The largest private collection of clocks and watches in the world is housed in the home of James Arthur, a wealthy retired machinery inventor of Brooklyn. The mansion, built by the late William H. Hill, long has been one of the show places of the town on account of its hardwood panelings and other decorations. Every room and hallway has been employed. One room is finished in black birch, another in mahogany, a third in mahogany, and so on. Another of Mr. Arthur's "hobbies" is cabinetmaking, and so the Hill residence filled in precisely with his fancy, and he bought it partly as a museum for his timepieces, many of which are encased in the costliest of woods, matching or contrasting with the paneling of the walls and ceiling.

There are in the collection about 122 clocks and 1,000 watches. The clocks, of which 44 are "grandfathers," are scattered throughout the entire mansion, and 21—one in each room—are kept going constantly. The others are always ready to go.

Not included in the collection itself are several massive hardwood cases of African rosewood, marble wood, etc., made by Mr. Arthur with his own hands, and which stand there in silence, awaiting the day when their owner shall have designed or invented special works for them that will register in some unusual way the flight of time. He has never sold a clock or a watch, nor has he ever given one away except to his own children, for their separate homes, when they marry.

In the main parlor is the first complete clock ever made by Mr. Arthur—made in 1897. It is a ten-day timepiece, with two 40-pound weights, and a compensating pendulum of aluminum and steel. One dial is in the case and above are three other dials, showing the way in which the machinery is arranged in a triangle tower clock. The works as well as the case are the personal handwork of Mr. Arthur, and the actual cost is estimated at over $1,200.

The "Family Clock," also made in every part by the head of the house, runs a year at one winding. The works are in a case of dark mahogany. The seven-inch spring is the largest in the United States, and the ticking arrangement, technically known as "escapement," is of the astronomical debeat pattern and is jeweled with diamonds.

This family clock was started by Mr. Arthur in 1906, and has been ceremoniously wound up once each year ever since then, each time by a different member of the family. The name of the member who winds the clock is engraved by Mr. Arthur from year to year on a brass plate set in the case. The clock actually will run thirteen months without rewinding, he says. Also, he adds, it is contained in a case within a case, and is so thoroughly protected from the weather that it will last, unimpaired, indefinitely.

"Five hundred years from now," declared Mr. Arthur to a New York World reporter, "this clock will run just as well as it does now."

The outer case is of plain dark mahogany with dark oak panels and a glass plate clock. One of the curiosities of the collection is a "glass plate clock," so called because all the wheels—there are only three in the whole mechanism—are pivoted in a single heavy plate of glass. There is no framework. The instrument was made in France and is of unknown age. There are only two others like it—one in London and one at the Conservatoire des Arts et Metiers in Paris. The large wheel has 300 teeth. The day of the week and also of the month are shown on the dial, which is enameled on copper.

Another clock has a brass skeleton frame in exact imitation of the Gothic monument to Sir Walter Scott in Edinburgh. The movement is of the chain-and-fusee type, the wheel for the chain being cone shaped. The clock was built in Edinburgh many years ago for a priest, who brought it to the United States.

Unique Repeater.
Also in the collection is a five-minute repeater clock, designed and made by Mr. Arthur—machinery, oak case and all. A big bell rings the hours, and if a certain chain is pulled the bell will ring the last preceding hour, and a smaller bell chimes once for each five-minute period since the last hour. Thus, if it is 10:55 a. m., the big bell goes ten times and then the little bell also rings eleven times, indicating that it is within five minutes of 11 a. m.

The figures on the glass dial are cut out clear through the metal, which makes them show very distinctly in almost any light or against the perfect blackness behind them.

In Mr. Arthur's bedroom is a get-up clock of his own invention. The face is two feet in diameter and the hands, covered by an aluminum paint, show plainly across the room if there is any moonlight. The wheels and dial are of New Jersey dogwood. The pendulum, which is over five feet long and has a 27-pound bob, beats once every one and one-fourth second at a steady measure.

A Fabian Robins Clock.

Standing beside the get-up timepiece

er are two tall and beautifully inlaid clocks, one made by the celebrated Fabian Robins in London, in 1695, the other by the noted Jan Gobeis in Amsterdam in 1767. There are only ten of Gobeis' clocks now in existence, so far as known. The Robins masterpiece has unique hand-made lacework steel hands. Though the works were made in London, the inlaid wood case was continued in Holland, the task occupying a year.

One of the clocks downstairs has a Gothic dome of dark mahogany, made by Mr. Arthur, and the instrument is surmounted by a solid brass bell, made long ago in France or Germany, in copy of a famous cathedral bell in Moscow.

Hour First Then Quarters.
In a mummy coffin case of dark oak, of his own construction, 7 1/2 feet high, Mr. Arthur has put the works of an old French clock, made in the Department of Jura, near Switzerland. It strikes the hour first, then the quarters. Next modern big clocks, including the one at Madison square, strike the quarters first. The only thing new about the machinery is the brass case, which Mr. Arthur designed.

There are two carriage-spring clocks in the house. The spring is simply the lower part of a very diminutive laminated carriage spring, lying at the bottom of the clock, with its ends turned upward. The spring is of steel and runs the mechanism for a month without rewinding.

Among the ornate clocks is one of inlaid brass and tortoise shell. In design it includes singing birds and dancing women. Each number on the dial is on a separate plate enameled on copper. There is a French bulb eight-day clock in an old case lined with ivory and tortoise shell. One of the large timepieces has an aluminum dial and a heavy brass pendulum jeweled with agates.

Distinctive Hour Hands.
Specially noteworthy are the hands on the clocks in the Arthur collection consist of a spade (for the hours) and a pointer, in contrast to the common American plan of two pointers. The use of the spade pattern, Mr. Arthur says, greatly facilitates telling the time at a glance.

A fine example of a Howard eight-day clock of Boston is contained in a case of unknown, unsurpassed American workmanship, so perfectly jointed, in dark mahogany, that no one ordinary man, unaided, could have done it. A new dial and hands have been added by Mr. Arthur.

There are several examples in the collection of the ancient clocks whose weights, on cotton cords, were pulled up instead of being wound. Among them is a one-day Dutch timepiece with a hand painted dial. The works are 175 years old. Some early American owner tore off the original case, and substituted one of Pennsylvania cherry wood.

Made for a King.
On one of the mantels stands a French clock made for one of the old-time kings. It has a porcelain dial and is topped by a bronze elephant, remarkable in that it is entirely unlike an elephant in every single feature—legs, trunk, mouth, joints, ears, toes, everything—although resembling an elephant as a whole when looked at from a distance.

Among the Japanese timepieces are a number of long, narrow wall clocks that look like lizards frozen straight and stiff. The hands of these clocks are fastened to weights and move up and down, marking the hours, which are arranged in a line, one above the other. There are three elaborately designed Japanese clocks in cases, one yard in height.

Mr. Arthur has a number of curious one-minute remonter (rewinding), springless clocks, with weights and compensating pendulums.

Made by a Blacksmith.
One of Mr. Arthur's valued antiques is an old church timepiece. Tradition has banded it down as the "English Blacksmith's clock." It has the very earliest application of the pendulum, which in this case is less than three inches long, is hung on the verge or pallet axle, and beats 222 times a minute. This clock is at least two hundred and fifty years old. The wheels are of cast brass, but the teeth were laboriously filed by hand. All the staffs, pinions and pivots were filed by hand, as also were the four screws. It is a complete striking clock, made by a man so poor that he had only his anvil, hammer and file. There is only one hand, and the weights are hung by cords and have to be pulled up.

Among the other interesting timepieces in the collection are a four-faced chimney clock a yard high, which a man in Switzerland spent his entire life; a French clock by Poligny of Jura; a gilt clock in glass, the pendulum bob of which is a child swinging in and out instead of across; an eight-day clock, 250 years old, made with iron plates, with a dial of melted pewter spoons; a French clock which has a dinner plate dial and no hole for winding.

Soldiering is a cure for sore eyes. When Great Britain first started to re-equip her enormous armies for Kitchen, large numbers of young men were rejected for trifling defects in vision. Later the hours were let down and the wearing of a pair of eyeglasses was not made cause for rejection. Then it was learned that many defects of the eyes disappeared within a few months. The answer, of course, is that physical training and outdoor life does more to correct the vision than all the spectacles in the optician's shops. Young men who previous to enlistment could not cross a road in safety found that within three months they were able to read fine print without the slightest trouble and without the least ill effect to their eyes.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The great alars are in quiet places, so Heaven stands best revealed in quiet humble lives. There is no place too small, too much hidden, for one to show elevation of spirit and glory of life.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

The simple curled bacon seems to be somewhat of a puzzle to many cooks. To prepare it first have it cut very thin; the butcher will do this on the dried beef cutter. Then place it on ice to chill. Have a heavy iron frying pan very hot and stir constantly while cooking. Tip the pan while it is cooking, so that it may not stew in its own grease. Bacon should always be served dry and crisp enough to eat from the fingers.

Broiled Ham.—Cut thin slices from ham and cover with sour milk and let stand over night. In the morning rinse well and broil over coals or in a hot pan. In either case the cooking should be done quickly and the ham browned.

Fried Chicken With Olive Sauce.—Cut up well-dressed chicken, dip in seasoned flour and brown in butter, then cook slowly until thoroughly done. Serve with olive sauce.

Olive Sauce.—Brown two tablespoonsful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour and brown. Stir in a cupful of stock, that from best extract will do if no other is at hand, and cook until smooth. Add one dozen stuffed olives and let stand until the olives are well heated through.

Planked Whitefish.—Heat and oil a plank make suitable boards. Spread upon this board skin-side down a whitefish, cleaned and split down the under side, brush over with butter or oil, and set in the dripping pan under the gas; after cooking a few minutes remove to the floor of the oven to finish cooking. Cook about twenty-five minutes, basting often. Set the fish on the plank upon a platter, spread with butter that has been mixed with lemon juice in the proportion of three tablespoonsful of butter to one of lemon juice, season with salt and pepper and serve piping hot. Garnish the edge of the plank with mashed potato, put through a pastry bag and tube. Parsley and onion is used to finish the decoration.

Idle words.

Gossiping is often laid at the door of women. It may be that their ordinary occupations have a narrowing effect. They have not the same freedom of m'gling in the larger affairs of the world that men have, and this may lead to gossip in seeking escape from the monotony of life. But make no mistake—gossip is not confined to women, nor is their gossip the most harmful. The gossip is a dangerous person. The vice is not stamped on the face like that of drunkenness, adulation to drugs and other vices. Nature provides no immediate warning against the gossip, who may have a genial manner and a pleasant smile. The gossip—too often the slanderer—never assumes responsibility for his scandalous utterances. The choice he is introduced by the phrase, "they say" or "I heard." Enough truth is told to make the tale plausible. The characteristics which go to make the gossip are largely envy and jealousy. There is a desire to be thought of more important than one's deficiencies. Gossip is a prolific breeder of gossip. When mind and body are busy, there is little room for idle talk. If you are gossiped about, pay no attention to the matter, either to explain or deny. Gossip, like muddy water, will settle if not stirred up. Taking notice of it keeps it alive. Plato says: "When men speak ill of thee, so live that no one will believe them." Speak well of others when you can—otherwise keep silent.

The earnings of the Panama canal were three times as great in July, 1915, as in the previous September and two and a half times as great during this August as during the same period a year ago. This is encouraging, particularly if we make comparison with the other great canal, that at Suez, which is suffering from the war. The commercial traffic of the Suez canal fell off last year 2,318,187 tons and declined 42 per cent during the last five months of the year. If Panama traffic continues to increase at this rate and Suez traffic to decline, the American canal will soon overtake and pass the Egyptian one.

Press dispatches from the Pacific coast tell of the illumination of sheep pens by electricity to encourage the animals to eat frequently and so fatten for market in record time. The sheep pens are wired and the light is turned on at four o'clock in the afternoon in winter and burns until nine o'clock. The sheep feed all the time the light is on. It is turned on at four in the morning, and the sheep again begin to feed. It is reported that the frequent feeding brings them to the marketing stage quickly.

STRANGE SITUATION IN BREATHITT

Twelve Fendits Are Paroled In Custody of Daughter of Man They Murdered.

(Winchester Democrat.)

Twelve men's liberty is the hostage that has been placed in the hands of Mrs. Lillian Gross, postmistress of Buckhorn, Ky., for the preservation of a truce which, it is believed, has put an end at least to clan bloodshed in feud-plagued Breathitt county.

The twelve men and five others were indicted for the assassination of Ed. Callahan, former sheriff of Breathitt county and head henchman of Judge Jim Hargis, chief of the Hargis clan. Their indictment was brought about by Mrs. Gross, who is Callahan's daughter. When her father was shot from ambush at the door of his store at Crockettville three years ago she rode over the mountains at night and gathered testimony against his slayers and their accomplices. In good time, she laid before the grand jury and seventeen men were called to account.

Three of the men were tried at Winchester and on the testimony of Mrs. Gross' witnesses, were sentenced to life imprisonment. The other fourteen men were practically paroled to Mrs. Gross. They were released on good behavior. As long as they lead peaceful lives and refrain from feud plots they would be allowed to enjoy their liberty. If information of misconduct on the part of any one of them came to the court's knowledge, he would have to face trial.

Doc Smith, one of the paroled men, heedless of the probable penalty, fell into disorderly ways. The fact was brought to the knowledge of the judge at Winchester. Officers were sent for him. His parole was revoked and he was locked up. He was tried and found guilty and was sent to the penitentiary for life.

Tom Deaton, one of the remaining thirteen men, has died. The other twelve are free to come and go over the Breathitt county mountains as long as they behave as the law requires men to behave. They have the example of Doc Smith to remind them that if they lapse into lawlessness the penitentiary will be their portion.

And Mrs. Gross, the Buckhorn postmistress, is the custodian of their liberty. She does not crave their incarceration. It is not in the spirit of vengeance that she has sent four men to the penitentiary for life. She wanted her father's murderers punished because she felt that punishment was their due, but she had a finer purpose. She wanted to see the law, long dragged in the bloody dust, again rampant in the mountains. In place of the feud-code of life for life, she wanted to see the dawning of a day of order and permanent peace. The sending of four men to the penitentiary for life was part of the price. She is content that no greater price shall be paid. But she is determined that the peace shall be kept and that the soil of Breathitt shall not again be soiled with the blood of feud victims.

She keeps watch on the twelve men as they come and go. She talks to them when they ride up in front of the little postoffice and come in for their mail, and is glad to receive their assurances that they are done with the dark days and dark ways of the feud and are determined to live that no fault shall be found with them.

The twelve men, the loss of whose liberty will be the penalty of reversion to the violence of other days, are Robert, John, Tom, Billy and Dan Deaton, Corvan and Eliza Smith, Abe and Billy Johnson, Asbury, McIntosh and John Clair. Not all of them live in the Buckhorn community and not all of them ride up to the Buckhorn postoffice for their mail. But they all live in Breathitt county or at the farthest across the border in Perry county, and the postmistress has no need to make special inquiry as to their manner of living. All roads lead to the postoffice and every mountain man who rides his mule up one creek or down another brings the news of the region; and the man from down the ridge tarry at the postoffice and tell each other what has been going on in several localities. The postmistress, listening as she is privileged to do, knows pretty well what her hostages are doing and how they are behaving.

Concerning most of them she has no anxiety. In the good faith of several she has complete confidence. Between her and some of the men who plotted her father's destruction there is friendship. They are the younger members of the feud band, who, when she was gathering evidence against them, went to her and threw themselves on her mercy, blaming mountain whisky and the counsel of older men for their complicity in the killing of her father. They went to Winchester with her and by their testimony helped to send four of the ring-leaders of their clan to prison. They are her friends now and she is their friend, and there is no likelihood that she will ever have to call the attention of the court at Winchester to any misdoing of theirs.

A MERCILESS JUDGE

One Who Shows No Favor.

A merciless judge is Father Time. Before him the weak and wanting go to the wall. Only the truth can stand. For years the following statement from a Maysville resident has withstood the sternest of all tests.

Frederick Dresel, tailor, 1235 E. Second St., Maysville, says: "I was troubled with inflammation of the bladder and an annoyance from my kidneys. The passages of the kidney secretions were irregular and I had a severe pain across the small of my back which interfered with my duties. When a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Wood's & Son's Drug Store. They gave me prompt relief."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER Mr. Dresel said: "Since I used Doan's Kidney Pills, I have not had any kidney trouble nor have I had to take a kidney medicine in that time." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Dresel has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

CARIBOU IS FASTEST RUNNER

In Maine it is contended that the caribou can outrun any other animal. According to the testimony of one woodman, caribou left behind a greyhound that had been matched against them.

A guide succeeded in starting the dog after some caribou—a herd of four standing like statues on the ice of one of the big ponds in the region along the west branch of the Penobscot.

Now, the caribou trots, instead of running, like most other wild animals. In the present case there had been a plentiful fall of snow, a rain—which had formed a thick crust—and then another fall of snow, all of which brought the very hard surface whereupon to hold a race of this description. When the greyhound was loosed its owner confidently expected that it would outrun the caribou.

When the caribou woke up and hit their pace it was a sight to see them. They did not appear to be proceeding with the regular stride of the greyhound, but as the bound drew up on them they increased their pace. The bound was doing his very best, but made no headway against the caribou at all. The dog stuck to it with courage, but before it was half way across the pond the caribou had reached the other side and disappeared in the woods.

Everything from live stock to household necessities may be brought here for sale, the owner being allotted a suitable place and charged a small fee for his accommodation, and while most of the market people are far from being especially rustic in their dress or speech, the variety and sometimes the peculiarity of their offerings suggest the important part which the English market and its legal control played in the local and business life of the centuries ago—Charles Winslow H in National Magazine.

MAJORITY IS REDUCED

Tremendous Gains Made By Dry Forces in Buckeye State

AMENDMENTS ARE DEFEATED

Big Loss Sustained by Wets in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Hamilton and Dayton—Pucha Elected Mayor of Cincinnati—Karb Re-Elected Mayor of Columbus.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Cincinnati, O.—Sunny skies and moderate temperature over the entire state brought out an unprecedented number of voters. Officials of the Anti-Saloon League reported indications were that one-third of the total vote in cities and villages had been recorded before 3:30. Interest in the local contests in most cities of Ohio delayed returns in the prohibition and stability amendments.

George Pucha has been elected mayor of Cincinnati by a majority over Charles Sawyer, Democrat, that will exceed 70,000, and the entire Republican city ticket also wins by a big majority.

AMENDMENTS ARE DEFEATED.

Columbus, O.—Every amendment and statute submitted to the people of Ohio has, on the first of returns, been rejected. There is doubt upon but one of them—that of applying state-wide prohibition.

Tremendous gains have been made by the dry forces. There has been a steady and uniform gain for their cause in the rural counties and loss on the part of the supporters of the liberal cause.

The greatest of these was sustained in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Hamilton and Dayton, where the majorities dwindled by thousands. There were notable exceptions on both sides, but these changes involved only hundreds.

The aims of the leaders of the campaign for a majority of 60. Med. These claims were representatives of the city, who, however, did not to the extent of asserting that they had achieved a triumph.

No candidate for the Columbus mayoralty election has received a majority of votes cast under the first, second and third choice, but Mayor George J. Karb, Democrat, had such a lead on the non-partisan preferential ballot that his election by a plurality of upward of 3,000 is assured. Karb had a steady vote in all parts of the city, confined largely to first-choice votes. He received few second and third choice votes. It is estimated that less than 40 per cent of the votes rallied themselves of the other choices.

OFFERS DECISIVE OVERTHROW.

Holzberger carried with the ed Democratic ticket with the Sixth Ward. The fight was against the administration. Socialists for the past two d the campaign became very

They were selected from a field of 23 by an overwhelming vote in every instance.

BIG VOTE IS CAST IN DAYTON.

Dayton, O.—Henry Hildesen, Democrat, has been elected city commissioner by a majority of about 3,000, and Willard Barringer, Socialist, leads John R. Elston, present incumbent, by about 100. The Sprague and McDermott referendums lost by majorities of 2,000 to 3,000.

VOTES FOR WOMEN LOST

New York State Goes To Republicans—Control the General Assembly

WISON VOTES AT PRINCETON

Massachusetts Defeats Suffrage Amendment—Close Fight Over the Proposed New Constitution in New York—Commissioners Chosen in Buffalo.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. New York.—"Votes for women" lost in New York State by at least 200,000. After the most extensive campaign ever made in any commonwealth in an effort to swing 10,000,000 inhabitants, the leaders of the movement admitted defeat. The most closely contested battle was over the addition of the proposed new constitution, prepared at Saratoga. Republican state headquarters conceded that the constitution had been defeated. In choosing a full state assembly of 150 members, the Republicans regained a majority.

Boston, Mass.—In Massachusetts the suffrage amendment went down to defeat, the vote from 938 precincts out of 1,149 being for and 173,192 against the measure. The vote for governor is close. Returns from 1,101 out of 1,149 in the state gave McCall, Republican, 224,674, and Walsh, Democrat, 221,787.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Suffrage was equally unfortunate in Pennsylvania. The returns were slow in coming in, but the defeat of the proposal was indicated by an overwhelming majority. Early returns in the mayoralty contest in Philadelphia indicated the election of Thomas B. Smith, Republican.

Baltimore, Md.—The indicated majority for Harrington, Democrat, running for governor of Maryland, was 5,900 in the city of Baltimore. Detroit, Mich.—Voting on a plan to purchase the local street railroads, showed from 89 precincts (out of 202), a great majority against the measure. Princeton, N. J.—In New Jersey the Republicans gained two state senators, which will make the next senate stand 13 Republicans to 8 Democrats. President Wilson came over from Washington to vote.

OPTIMISTIC IN SPITE OF DEFEAT.

New York.—At the headquarters of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, where Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and her lieutenants received the returns, optimism ebbed at the heavy vote against suffrage given with late returns.

"If, when the final count comes," said Dr. Shaw, "we should not have won the state, we, at least, have won the greatest victory in the history of our movement. We have the largest number of votes that have ever been cast for us in any state."

"As to Massachusetts, I am not at all surprised at the way the vote went. Massachusetts is an exceedingly conservative state. I did not expect suffrage to carry in Massachusetts."

COMMISSIONERS ARE CHOSEN.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Arthur W. Krein, Charles M. Heald, Chas. B. Hill and John F. Malone were elected city commissioners under the commission form of government in effect January 1. Of the four candidates two are Republicans and two Democrats.

McCall's plurality is expected to be small. The Democratic state committee early in the night conceded McCall's election. Returns from 1,101 precincts out of 1,149 in the state gave McCall, Republican, 224,674; Walsh, Democrat, 221,787. The entire Republican ticket was elected and the Republican majority in the legislature was increased. Edward T. Barry, the defeated Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, blamed the defeat of his party on the liquor interests.

GOVERNOR WALSH IS DEFEATED.

Boston, Mass.—Governor David I. Walsh, Democrat, was defeated in his race for re-election by Samuel H. McCall, a former congressman, Republican. McCall's plurality is expected to be small. The Democratic state committee early in the night conceded McCall's election. Returns from 1,101 precincts out of 1,149 in the state gave McCall, Republican, 224,674; Walsh, Democrat, 221,787. The entire Republican ticket was elected and the Republican majority in the legislature was increased. Edward T. Barry, the defeated Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, blamed the defeat of his party on the liquor interests.

DEMOCRATIC CLAIM IS DISPUTED.

New York.—Republican national leaders, having their statements upon returns received, claim that the elections are more significant of Republican success than of Democratic victory in the 1916 contest for control of the federal government.

Democratic leaders are disposed to dispute this, and assert that when the full returns are in their unbiased hands they will show that their party is holding its own from the national standpoint.

MIKE BROWN AND LOUIS MERZ

To Lead the Campaign Forces For the Chamber of Commerce—A Live Organization Is To Be Built Up.

The managing committee of the Chamber of Commerce has selected two of Maysville's liveliest citizens to lead the campaign forces for membership for the proposed organization. Mike Brown and Louis Merz have been selected as generals of the right and left wing of the membership canvass forces and have agreed to accept the honor imposed upon them. They will get together at campaign headquarters today and select captains for the four canvass teams to work under their supervision. The captains of the eight teams will then be called together to select their respective squads, making in all about fifty "live-wire" workers who are going out when the proper time comes to round up Maysville's best citizenship in the membership of the Chamber of Commerce.

The pace set for the proposed organization is "400 member and an annual income of $5,000 a year," and, from the systematic and aggressive way in which the campaign is being planned and pushed, it looks as if this mark will not be missed very far.

The managing committee, after carefully considering the various plans proposed, has adopted the one in use by the most successful commercial-civic organizations throughout the country. It is what is known as the "departmental plan," the work of the organization being divided into various departments. Here, the organization will have five departments: Organization Affairs, Business Affairs, Civic Affairs, Industrial Affairs and Agricultural Affairs. Each of these departments will be headed by a member of the Board of Directors, and will be divided into several sub-divisions covering the different phases of work planned for the organization and which will naturally fall under the departments named.

The plan also includes a Member's Council, which is to consist of one or more representatives from each line of trade, business or professional endeavor included in the membership. These representatives are to be selected by the various groups themselves. The Members' Council will be the strong initiative body of the organization. Its recommendations to the Board of Directors are practically a demand for the Board to take the action recommended. By a majority vote, the Members' Council can also ask the Board of Directors to reconsider any action it may have taken and which the Council does not agree with. Such a plan puts the work of the organization more directly in the control of the members, making the Board of Directors more of a clearing house for such matters as may be put up to it through the Members' Council.

The membership campaign is to cover four days, November 11, 12 and 13, and 16, two hours, 10 a. m. and 12 noon, each day being devoted to the canvass by the various teams. The hope is expressed that when the canvass is started, no citizen of Maysville who has the interest of his town at heart will hesitate in signing up in support of this movement which means so much in our city's future development.

The membership dues agreed upon are $12.50 per year for each membership, though firms and larger business concerns, banks, etc., are expected to take two or more, up to eight memberships, according to their size and importance and the benefit they are expected to derive from the work of the organization.

The membership of the Chamber of Commerce will determine the policies of the organization. It will state what the organization will set out to do. In other words, the platform of work for the first year will be evolved from suggestions called for from every member of the organization, giving the vital things the new organization should do to better Maysville's interest along commercial, civic, industrial and agricultural lines. The particular manner of doing which and the specific things to do to bring about such development will be determined by the membership.

There will also be a budgeting committee whose duties will be to properly allot the funds of the organization and see that they are applied where the best results can be brought about. The budgeting committee will be selected jointly by the Membership Council and the Board of Directors. This assures efficiency and economy in handling the funds of the Chamber.

Arrangements have also been made to bring the farmers of Mason county into the organization, by providing a special Farmers' Membership at $5 per year. This will give the farmers all the privileges that city members have in the organization, and every dollar derived from the farmers' memberships will be set aside as a benefit fund to be used solely for the benefit of the agricultural interests of the county.

There will be a "smoker" meeting for those interested in the new organization at the City Council Chamber at 7:30 p. m. next Friday, the 5th inst. This meeting is open to the public, and every citizen of Maysville interested in his city's future growth along all lines is expected to attend the meeting, where the objects and aims of the proposed organization will be fully explained. No subscriptions will be asked or received at the meeting.

THE THEATERS.

Marguerite Clark, in "Seven Sisters," was the attraction at the Washington theater Tuesday. Miss Clark was at her best in this Famous Players release and delighted the large audiences with her clever acting. She was ably assisted by a splendid cast. "Seven Sisters" was one of the quietest and most entertaining comedy-dramas ever in this city, and pleased all who saw it.

Manager H. C. Mills gave his patrons their usual weekly treat, a number of the popular "Diamond From the Sky" series. The films shown were the eleventh number of the series and were especially good. "A Spook of Mexican Man," a beautiful three reel Lubin release, was also shown. Etienne Fielding featured in this picture and his many Maysville admirers were of the opinion that he was at his best in this film.

Regular meeting of Maysville Council No. 1,377 K. of C., this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A full attendance desired.

H. J. SHEA, G. K. John McAniff, Secretary.

Taken from the jail at Columbia, Miss., by a party of masked men, Jack Hughes, foreman of a lumber plant arrested in connection with the murder of a youth, was hanged to a tree.

A girl is never satisfied until she has coaxed some young man into telling her how handsome she is.

If it wasn't for the weather a great many lovers would have no excuse for staying in the business.

"Chalice of Courage"

Return engagement of this wonderful production will be at the Gem Theater Thursday of this week. As a special request of many, at a great expense, Manager Mills has secured this grand picture again. Those who saw it can vouch for it and will enjoy it again. You who did not see it can't afford to miss this, the last opportunity to see "Chalice of Courage" on its return engagement.
